News from the Farm:

This week we seeded our fall/winter storage crops, such as beets and carrots. Some of our standard summer vegetables, like peppers and eggplants, seem to be taking a while to come on, though tomatoes are slowly starting to ripen.

Get to Know Your Farmer: Abbi

How long have you been at Badger Organics? This is my third year.

How did you become part of Badger Organics? I've been working on an orchard since graduating from Madison and wanted to get more experience working with vegetables and flowers. I found Tim and Becky through the Fair Share website.

What is your favorite vegetable? Dry beans. They're like seed currency. You can plant it or eat it, it's beautiful, easy to grow, and there are so many heirloom varieties.

What is your least favorite vegetable? Parsnips. Weed management is tough, they're challenging to harvest (they have a long tap root that makes it hard to get out cleanly), and they don't even taste that great!

What is your favorite farm task? Weeding in the hoop house.

What do you like to do in your free time? There is none! It's been a busy season.

We hope you enjoy this week's produce!
